A filme sprinkle from Jupiter Piuvius's watering pot prevailed for a hair-hour previous to the time of calling play to-day, and it was a most dubious outlook for a contest. Plenty of clear sky was displayed to the eastward, but directly overhead the grounds and back in the direction of Jersey's shore the heavens were hung as if with a pall, and a mighty rumble of celestial artillery was reverberating through the Harlem hills.

It looked as if a heavy fall of rain might come at any moment.

The charges are to be filed with the Attorney-General of the State.

Dr. Taft is quoted as saying that a convict named Robert Vesia was poisoned by arsenic and then robbed by an employee of the Penitentiary during 1893. Another convict named Mell, he says, was also poisoned.

A convict named Donnolly and several others died, he alleges, from want of medical care.

The Charities Commissioners state that they know nothing of the charges, and they do not believe there is any foundation for them. Kenneth F. Mr. Manning's counsel said that his client and his wife had lived together for forty years, and that if the judgment was allowed to stand it might cause discord. Justice Patterson said he would open the default and allow Mr. Manning to file an answer, but that the order of reference and the judgment. Knew Sutherland Was Coming A rumor was current this morning that Sutherland had returned to the city from Canada yesterday, and that he has spent the night in jail. Sheriff Buttling, however, denied the story, but admitted that he had been notified that Sutherland would appear to-day.

In anticipation of the expected return, Sheriff Buttling went to his office at 8 o'clock this morning. After sitting around the office for nearly an hour he sauntered outside in front of the Court House. He had only been there a few minutes when he heard a familiar voice

"Hello, Sheriff; I thought I would come in and visit you."

Buttling looked at the speaker, and recognized Sutherland. He invited him into the building, and then sent a mes sage to Deputy Attorney-General Edward M. Shepard apprising him of the fugutive's arrival. an assignment to Milton Rathburn to-day without preferences.

Sutherland told the Sheriff that he had just arrived in town.

"I walk: I all the way from South Ferry," he said, "and didn't meet a soul that I knew." Sutherland chatted with the Sheriff in the latter's private office, but did not touch upon his own case. He seemed very chee, ful.

Few Knew of Fugitive's Surrender. The news that he had returned was carefully guarded, and did not leak out until nearly 10 o'clock, when preparations were made to arraign him in court. Fred Walbaum and George Engeman, respectively representing the Hawthorne, Washington Park, Saratoga and Brighton Beach tracks, met in the Hoffman House this morning.

Secretary Sass, of Brighton Beach, said this afternoon that if matters were not amicably arranged at the meeting tonight Brighton would probably race.
"We shall ask for a license, for it is not fair for us to ask horsemen to array themselves with us and risk disqualification for one day only. Regarding the remainder of the meeting I do not know just now what action will be taken, however. We are hoping for agreeable adjustment of the difficulty tonight."

The Jockey Club will receive the four track owners in their rooms at 173 Fifth agence.

VIRGINIA'S NEW TRACK. Day, Oct. 8.

The story told to an "Evening World" reporter this afternoon by young Dykeman's father and mother only tends to deepen the mystery. Neither of them when seen at their residence seemed to be in the least affected, and talked about their boy's death as if there was nothing tragic about it. This was the story told by the mother and corroborated by the father:

"Eddie, who is nineteen years old, and his brother Oliver have been in the habit of taking a stroll on Sundays. That is how they came to be at Corona yesterday. Eddie had for years been subject to hemorrhages, and sometimes they have been severe. We knew that it was only a question of time until these hemorrhages would kill him.

"The boys were walking along a narrow path, Oliver in front, when Eddie cried out: 'Olie, pick me up:

"Turning, Oliver saw Eddie lying on the ground and blood gushing from his mouth and head, where the latter had struck a rock.

"The boy evidentiv had a severe hemorrhage and had fallen. Oliver sent in ambulance calls to two hospitals, but got no response from either. He managed finally to get a doctor, but shortly afterwards Eddie died."

They did not believe Eddie had been shot.

favorable for the race tracks. As all who are interested in turf afairs know, Mr. Dwyer was arrested on charge of conducting a lottery on the rounds of the Brooklyn Jockey Club, Peter De Lacy being the complainant. After considerable parleying in police courts, both sides consented to take he matter before the Supreme Court on a writ of habeas corpus. The case was argued there last Thursday.

Justice Gaynor's decision will effec-tually dispose of the cases now pending against the judges of racing, book-makers and other officials arrested with makers and other officials arrested with Mr. Dwyer.
Peter De Lacy's next move will un-doubtedly be an appeal from Justice Gaynor's decision to the Court of Ap-peals.
Justice Gaynor's opinion is not a Justice Gaynor's opinion is not a lengthy one. It recites the history of the Lottery laws in New York State and a discussion of them before the Constitutional Conventional in 1821.

Justice Gaynor takes the ground that the lottery laws have nothing whatever to do with horse-racing. The lottery clause in the Constitution is the point upon which De Lacy based his case against Dwyer and other racing men.

They took the Grand street trolley cars in Brooklyn to Corona, and started to walk from this place to the beach, about two miles away. That was at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

About three hours later Joseph Dykeman returned to Corona and told Dr. Frank Wickham that his brother had fallen on the trolley track and injured his head. The physician hurried to the place where the injured man lay, but found that the latter was dead.

Coroner Brandon was at once notified, and he directed that an autopay should be performed. No one thought at the time of detaining Joseph Dykeman, and he was allowed to go with the unknown companion.
